Dual-Titles

Dual-Title M.A. in Ancient Mediterranean Studies and Linguistics

Requirements listed here are in addition to requirements listed in GCAC-208 Dual-Title Graduate Degree Programs (<https://gradschool.psu.edu/graduate-education-policies/gcac/gcac-200/gcac-208-dual-titles/>).

Graduate students with research and education interests in Ancient Mediterranean Studies and Linguistics may apply to the dual-title M.A. in Ancient Mediterranean Studies and Linguistics. The goal of the dual-title degree in Ancient Mediterranean Studies and Linguistics is to enable graduate students in Ancient Mediterranean Studies to acquire the knowledge and skills of their major area of specialization in Ancient Mediterranean Studies, while at the same time gaining the methods and perspective of Linguistics.

Admission Requirements

Students must apply and be admitted to the graduate program in Ancient Mediterranean Studies and the Fox Graduate School before they can apply for admission to the dual-title degree program. After admission to their primary program, students must apply for admission and meet the admission requirements of the Linguistics dual-title program. Students should refer to requirements listed on the Linguistics Bulletin page. Students must be admitted into the dual-title program before the second year of their M.A. program.

Requirements

To qualify for the dual-title degree, students must satisfy the M.A. degree requirements in Ancient Mediterranean Studies. In addition, students must complete the degree requirements for the dual-title in Linguistics, listed in the Linguistics' Bulletin page.

Some courses may satisfy both Ancient Mediterranean Studies and Linguistics degree requirements. No more than 3-credits may count towards both degrees. Final course selection must be approved by the student's adviser.

Students in the program are required to write a Master's Paper on a topic that is approved in advance by their M.A. paper committee and reflects their original research and education in Ancient Mediterranean Studies and Linguistics. The committee will be composed of Graduate Faculty from the Ancient Mediterranean Studies program and must include at least one member from the Linguistics program. Faculty members who hold appointments in both programs' Graduate Faculty may serve in a combined role, but the committee should contain a minimum of two members.
