

Ancient Mediterranean Studies

Graduate Program Head	Tawny Holm
Program Code	AMS
Campus(es)	University Park
Degrees Conferred	Master of Arts (M.A.) Dual-Title M.A. in Ancient Mediterranean Studies and Linguistics

The M.A. program in Ancient Mediterranean Studies is a broad, interdisciplinary program focused on the cultures, literatures, and histories of the ancient Mediterranean world. Students combine course work on research methodologies with seminars in their own areas of interest. Possible areas of interest could include—but are not limited to—the Ancient Near East, Egypt, the Hebrew Bible, early Judaism, Greece, Rome, Early Christianity, and the modern reception of the ancient Mediterranean world. The M.A. is a general humanistic degree that aims to prepare students for a variety of professions, including, but not limited to, future graduate work, secondary teaching, library science, and museum work.
