Admission Requirements

Applicants to this dual-title degree program should have a junior/senior cumulative average of at least 3.30 (on a 4.00 scale) and appropriate academic preparation. Preference will be given to those students who have an academic record that demonstrates experience in Linguistics and/or an ancient Mediterranean language (e.g., Greek, Latin, Hebrew, etc.) at the intermediate level. Where applicable, a minimum GPA of 3.5 (on a 4.00 scale) is requisite for graduate work previously undertaken. Prospective students seeking admission to this dual-title degree program are required to write a statement of purpose of approximately 500 words that addresses the ways in which their research and professional goals will reflect an interest in interdisciplinary research in their participating program and Linguistics.
